

Structured silver is a quantum leap ahead of older silver technologies like silver hydrosol and colloidal silver. The research and development to create it spanned several years, including numerous improvements and breakthroughs. Throughout this research, many silvers were produced and tested against each other by third-party pharmaceutical labs to find the best silver possible. Structured silver is the end result of this research.

pH Structured Silver looks, smells, and tastes like water. That's because it literally is 99.9970% pure water. However, this is not "just water". A special molecular structure that combines a tiny amount of silver with specially prepared water creates a new form of silver - one that outperforms the older silvers. It has only 2 ingredients and is free of additives, preservatives, or other artificial ingredients. It also has a mild alkalinity, unlike the older acidic silvers.

pH Structured Silver has an NPN from Health Canada labelling it safe to use when taken as directed. It is manufactured in a cGMP facility with over 130 Standard Operating Procedures that must be followed. It can be used in many ways, but the most common suggested use is to "drink two teaspoons, two times per day."
